Whiskey – Irish

Irish whiskey is one of the oldest distilled spirits in the world – with the first records of its production dating back to the 6th century. Compared to its Scottish cousin, it is typically triple distilled, which gives it remarkable smoothness, lightness, and a fruitier character.

A distinctive feature of Irish whiskey is the use of unpeated malt, which means it lacks the smoky tones known from Scotch whisky. The result is a harmonious, rounded, and approachable spirit that appeals both to connoisseurs and to those new to whiskey.

Whether you go for the legendary Jameson or opt for elegant single malts from distilleries like Bushmills or Tullamore, you'll embark on a journey to the heart of the Emerald Isle – where tradition and craftsmanship meet a modern approach.

Whiskey, Bourbon – USA

American whiskey has a character of its own – bold, rich, and bearing the spirit of freedom and craftsmanship. Among American whiskeys, bourbon holds a special place. Protected by law, it must be produced in the USA, contain at least 51 % corn, and be aged in new, charred oak barrels.

Bourbon is known for its sweet, vanilla-caramel flavor, which comes from the fresh wood of the barrels. In contrast, Tennessee whiskey (e.g., Jack Daniel's) undergoes the Lincoln County Process, where it's filtered through sugar maple charcoal, making it even smoother and more refined.

In this section, you'll find the classic Bulleit Bourbon, its rye version, and the world-famous Jack Daniel's – a true taste of America.

Whisky – Japan

Japanese whisky has become a global phenomenon – evolving from an under-the-radar player into a world-class category, admired for its subtlety, elegance, and balance.

Crafted with precision and deep respect for tradition, Japanese whisky draws inspiration from the Scottish style, yet developed its own softer, more floral character. Pure mountain water, climate contrasts, and aging in mizunara oak casks give it a unique profile.

Our selection includes highlights from the Nikka distillery – from the popular "From the Barrel" blend to single malts from Yoichi and Miyagikyo, as well as rare editions finished in rum casks.

Whisky – Scotland, Highlands region

The Highlands are the largest whisky region in Scotland. Typical characteristics include a smooth texture, honey and fruity notes, vanilla, caramel, and occasionally a hint of smoke – especially from distilleries in the north or on the islands.

Our selection includes exceptional brands like Glenmorangie – a true master of cask finishing – and Dalmore, known for aging its whiskies in the finest sherry casks. You'll also find Oban, appreciated for its complexity and mineral elegance, and Highland Park – a whisky from the Orkney Islands that combines coastal freshness with honeyed depth.

Whisky – Scotland, Speyside region

Speyside is considered the most prestigious whisky region in Scotland. It is located in the northeast of the country and is home to the largest concentration of distilleries, including famous names such as Glenlivet, Glenfiddich, and Macallan. The whiskies here are characterized by their approachable, smooth, and balanced taste, with sweetness, fruity notes, often with hints of sherry or spices.

In our selection, you will find both classic blends like Chivas Regal and single malt editions of iconic brands – Macallan, Glenlivet, and Glenfiddich – including exceptional archival vintages.

Whisky – Scotland, Island Regions

Whisky from the island regions of Scotland (including Islay, Skye, and Arran) is an experience for all the senses. The local distilleries face wild weather, sea air, and rugged nature – and all of this is reflected in the final distillate. Typical characteristics of island whisky include distinct peaty smoke, iodine and salty notes, earthiness, and surprising sweetness in the background.

Bottles such as Laphroaig and Lagavulin are legends among lovers of bold, smoky flavors. Talisker adds island elegance and spicy depth, while Arran shows that island whisky can also be smoother and fruitier.

This section is for those who are looking for authentic character, boldness, and a hefty dose of smoke.

Rum – Caribbean

The Caribbean is the cradle of rum – a distillate with a history that dates back to the sugarcane plantations. Each island, each country has its own style, character, and story. From the smooth and sweet rums of the Dominican Republic, to the robust Jamaican "funky" rums full of esters, to the elegant agricole rums from Martinique.

"Spanish style" rums – often aged using the solera method – tend to be smooth, vanilla-flavored, with dried fruit notes. The British style (e.g. Jamaica, Barbados) is fuller, spicier, and often strongly esteric. The French agricole style, made directly from fresh sugarcane juice, is lighter, herbal, and very aromatic.

In our selection, you will find legendary brands such as Angostura, Havana Club, Plantation, and A. H. Riise, but also smaller gems like Neisson, Hampden, or rare editions from Guadeloupe, Trinidad, or Cuba. Whether you're looking for rum for a cocktail, slow sipping, or as a special experience – your Caribbean journey begins here.

Rum – South and Central America

Rums from South and Central America are known for their elegance, sophistication, and often deeper aging. They are made from both molasses and fresh sugarcane juice, and their flavor profile is usually smooth, rounded, and harmonious – ideal for slow sipping.

For example, Peruvian Millonario is synonymous with smoothness, with notes of dried fruit and spices, while Zacapa from Guatemala is one of the most respected rums in the world, thanks to aging in mountain conditions at 2,300 meters above sea level using the solera method.

Venezuelan Diplomático offers a wide range – from lighter rums to rich, complex select editions.

Panama is home to brands like Zafra, Auténtico Nativo, and Demon's Share, known for their velvet texture and pleasant woody character. Mexico and El Salvador are also gaining prestigious awards in recent years, for example, thanks to the Cihuatán brand, which blends Mayan heritage with modern craftsmanship.

Latin America offers rums that appeal to connoisseurs as well as newcomers – they are complex, yet approachable. A great choice for those seeking harmony and elegance.

Rum – Africa

Africa may not be the first place that comes to mind when thinking of "rum," but islands such as Mauritius and Madagascar produce exceptional rums. Thanks to rich fertile soil, ideal climate, and a long tradition of sugarcane cultivation, they create distillates that combine exotic character with precise craftsmanship.

Mauritius offers very smooth, aromatic rums with distinctive notes of vanilla, tropical fruit, or caramel. Brands like Chamarel and Arcane prove that rum from Mauritius has earned its place among the world's premium brands.

Madagascar brings something entirely different – Dzama rums are known for their natural vanilla aroma, which comes from the local soil and environment, not from added sugar. These rums are very smooth, aromatic, and full of character.

African rums are a great choice for those looking for something unconventional, elegant, and fragrant, with a touch of exoticism.

Rum – Asia

Asia is a relative newcomer to the rum world map, but all the more interesting for it. Countries such as Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia, and Fiji have recently shown that even in the tropical zone outside the Caribbean, world-class rums are being produced – fragrant, smooth, sometimes experimental, but always full of sunshine and character.

Don Papa from the Philippines has become an icon for those who love sweeter and more approachable rums. Its rich vanilla profile, complemented by fruits, citrus, or spices in some editions, appeals to both beginners and connoisseurs seeking an unusual experience.

Chalong Bay from Thailand is a beautiful example of the so-called agricole rum – made from fresh sugarcane juice. It stands out for its lightness, purity, and subtle notes of lime, lemongrass, and herbs. It's a rum made for summer evenings.

On the other hand, rums from Fiji and Indonesia (e.g., Asia Pacific or Plantation Isle of Fiji) combine tropical strength with a European sensibility for aging, resulting in deep, sweet, and spiced rums that are gaining more and more attention.

Asian rums bring new energy to the world of distillates – and are definitely worth a try.
